

CHINESE BOOKS TO FORM NEW MCGILL LIBRARY

To be Opened February 13
in Redpath Library

CHINA'S CLASSICS

Dr. R. de Resilac Roese is Organizing Library—250
Tomes Here

On February 13, the New Year's Day of the Chinese people, the new Chinese library of McGill University will be opened to the general public. This library is at present situated in the depths of Redpath Library basement and directions for finding it can be obtained from the desk on the main floor.

Many of the best Chinese classics will be on exhibit, declared Robert de Resilac Roese, Ph.D., who is organizing it when interviewed. The books used to belong in the libraries of Chinese High Government officials. Two hundred and fifty tomes, embracing about 12,000 volumes are included in the McGill collection, and these are chiefly works of philosophy, history, belles-lettres, catalogues, commentaries, and "Tung-Shu" or reports of works which would not be obtainable but for the fine spirit of scholars who have gathered them from their hiding places and reproduced them so that future generations may continue to make use of them.

Dr. de Resilac Roese stated that the collection is not complete yet, many other volumes being on their way across the Pacific Ocean. The complete collection will help to make an unusually comprehensive, practical reference library, intended for use not as a mere repository but as a means for modern progressive study.

The services of Dr. Resilac Roese as librarian have been secured for the time being and he will be available for those interested.

Two cases of very valuable Chinese books are on exhibit in the library museum, it was stated. The Art Gallery also has a great collection of Chinese works.

Invites Students

Dr. de Resilac Roese extended a special invitation to Chinese students at McGill, and to Chinese diplomatists who might chance to visit the city.

When questioned as to the popularity of this library, he said that he did not expect many visitors from Chinatown here.

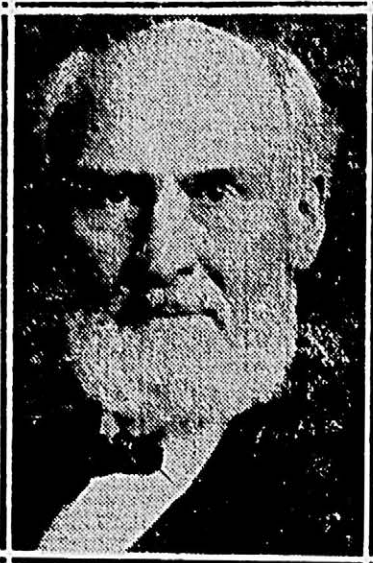

The collection, it is conceded, will be a most unique one and will in all probability command continent-wide interest. Among the features will be the encyclopedia which is in bulk far larger than the Britannica.

DR. BAGNANI TO SPEAK IN UNION TOMORROW

Owing to the fact that more than 500 were turned away when Dr. Gilbert Bagnani delivered his first lecture in the Physics Building on Monday it has been decided to hold the remaining lectures in the Union.

Dr. Bagnani will speak tomorrow on "Rome from Augustus to Trajan" and on Monday next on "Private Monuments in Rome and the Development of the City till Constantine."

Benefactor

Sir William C. Macdonald who is recalled today by McGill students on the occasion of the commemoration of the anniversary of his birth.

OBSERVE FOUNDER'S DAY AT MACDONALD

Commemorate Birthday of Great Benefactor

MANY BEQUESTS

Sir William Macdonald Gave
McGill Gifts Totalling
About Ten Millions

Macdonald College as well as McGill today commemorate the ninety-fifth anniversary of the birth of Sir William C. Macdonald. Sir William was the donor of the Macdonald Physics Building, the Macdonald Chemical and Mining Building, the Macdonald Engineering Building, the McGill Union, and Macdonald College at Ste Anne de Bellevue.

Born on February 10, 1831, Sir William Macdonald came of high lineage. His grandfather, a Macdonald of Glenade had risked and lost everything in the cause of the Stuarts and had finally founded the Scottish community in Prince Edward Island where Sir William was born and reared. The attachment which the grandfather had given to the cause of the Stuarts was reflected in the grandson's devotion to duty.

Sir William came to Montreal in his early youth and before very long launched into his successful career. His business enterprises culminated in the great tobacco concern which bears his name today.

None of those who knew him can ever forget what an unpretending and unassuming friend Sir William was to the University and all its members. Col. Wilfred Bovey declared yesterday, driving down to his office in his one-horse brougham, or walking in the college grounds, looking at the site of a new building, his short erect figure, his kindly look, were familiar to all. Teacher and student alike found in him a sympathetic and a wise adviser. It is interesting to note the Colonel said that his one-horse sleigh for winter have been preserved at Macdonald College, where it is often used to drive Dr. Harrison the principal to the station.

Many Bequests

The long list of bequests and endowments he made links the name of Sir William Macdonald with McGill forever. In 1896 the Department of Architecture had been added to the Faculty of Applied Science, and two years later another gift of Sir William.

SAYS GUIDANCE IS NEEDED FOR YOUTH OF CITY

Dr. Allan Hoben, Kalamazoo
College, Heard Here

CHILD LABOUR

Discusses Effect of City Life on the Family—Adolescence

"The city must be responsible for a normal home for the safety of the adolescent boy and the adolescent girl. The restriction of the size of homes in our cities forces our youths to go into the street, the playground, the park, or any other place where they can meet their friends and make new friends," declared Dr. Allan Hoben of Kalamazoo College in an address in the Union yesterday afternoon on "Youth and the City Streets," delivered under the auspices of the Sociological Department.

"Profound physiological changes take place in every youth from the age of 12 to 15, and often go on to the eighteenth year. This transformation takes place in every organism. The adolescent youth changes from the individualist state to the social state during this period," stated Dr. Hoben at the outset of his address. "The heart increases in size, the blood pressure rises, and the pulse quickens in its beat. There is also a corresponding change in the nervous system. The nerves are quickened and the number of sensations registered is enormously increased, necessitating a certain degree of discounting and evolution of these sensations at their value."

The speaker went on to deplore the fact that the age of maximum sensation precedes the age of maximum sense.

Dr. Hoben was of the opinion that from the age of 12 to 15 comes the period of instability, when the youth swings from one extreme to another. There is a lack of poise, and of self-possession which distinguishes the youth from the man, and which causes the social problem with which he is dealing. These youths usually group themselves into gangs of comparatively large numbers and are generally led by a youth who is least desirous from the social standpoint. These gangs usually seek some meeting places, and if the community is well supplied with parks and playgrounds the gang level may very easily be raised.

"The modern city," the speaker said "has a great effect on youth. He feels isolated. He is invited to spend, and even to steal, on account of the tempting displays made by shopkeepers in their windows. The youth also indulges in taking risks and engaging in adventures. He seeks thrills and craves for excitement. All these factors must be taken into account when considering this problem."

Problem of Family

Dr. Hoben then outlined the effect of city life on the family. He contrasted the individual and independent character of the city family with the unity and stability which the country and farm life imposes on the rural family. Furthermore, the home changes location more often in the city, the speaker said. Stability of location of home exerts a very good influence on the youth, and makes for a more personal connection with the neighbours who are in turn inclined to be more considerate to boys of old neighbours. A great evil in the city is the tendency to cut down on the area occupied by the home. Home space becomes insufficient, and the street or any similar place is substituted. The city must be responsible for a normal home for the safety of the adolescent boy and adolescent girl.

Youths, hungry for social life, go in search for amusement. They turn to pool rooms, dance halls, and other amusement emporiums, where haphazard acquaintances are made, who are not always of the type to be desired.

Dr. Hoben stressed the fact that there must be adequate social exchanges for adolescents, which are fun for the good they effect, and not for the monetary returns that they afford.

The speaker explained that there is a triple conspiracy against youth in the city. First there is the desire of the youth of about 16 to go out and earn his bread and be an individual—a man. Secondly there is the fact that in the country children are an asset whilst in the city, especially where there are compulsory education laws, children are a liability. Lastly there are the employers who still think child labor is cheap labor.

DENTALS TOLD OF DIAGNOSIS METHOD

Methodical Examination of Mouth Urged by Speaker

Methodical examination of the mouth on the part of the dentist was insisted upon, and the importance of the x-ray in dental diagnosis was stressed by Dr. A. L. Walsh, who is in charge of the Montreal General Hospital, last night before the Dental Undergraduate Society.

It very often happens, declared Dr. Walsh, that Chronic Septic Infections, such as rheumatism, result from infections in the oral cavity, or mouth. It also often happens that when a doctor sends a patient to a dentist to find out whether the mouth is the source of a bodily disease, the dentist makes an examination which lasts nearly three minutes and then pronounces the verdict "mouth healthy" or "cancer of the antrum" or something like that.

The speaker then outlined a scientific method of dental diagnosis which included general impressions, an examination of the mouth, the teeth, the cavities of decay, the periodontal tissues, and whether there are local or general irritants. Such an examination would help the doctor decide whether the mouth was the source of the Chronic Septic Infection or not.

X-Ray Important.

The x-ray is important in finding the pathological conditions, or abnormalities of a particular tooth. The diagnosis of a tooth in which there is a pathological disturbance should be done as scientifically as the general examination of the mouth. The x-ray is only an aid but a very important one.

"A dentist must be very well acquainted with the normal conditions to detect the abnormal conditions," concluded Dr. Walsh.

PINERO PLAY TO BE ACTED BY PLAYERS

"Sweet Lavender" Chosen
for Production

MEET THURSDAY

Will be Given After the Red and White Revue—
Casting Started

The production of Sir Arthur Pinero's "Sweet Lavender" a three-act play will feature the work of the Players' Club for the second term the executive of the club announced last night.

There will be a meeting of the Players' Club in the hall room of the Union at 5 o'clock on Thursday of this week when the producing staff recently organized will make final decision concerning the forthcoming production it was announced last night by the executive.

The proposed date of the production has been tentatively set for the week after the Red and White Revue. However the Alma Mater Dance conflicts with this date, and the possibility of a further postponement will be discussed. It is probable that three performances will be given as formerly, it was stated.

It has been found necessary to abandon the original policy of the executive to produce three one act plays it was further announced.

Due to other students activities it will be impossible, either to cast the six male parts still unfilled, or to paint and erect the necessary scenery. The objections to the policy of a three-act play which formerly appeared formidable, have been met. It was stated and the club authorities feel that the Club is much better fitted as things stand, to make a success of one production. All the ability of the members can in this case be concentrated on one objective.

Pinero Play

After much consideration Sir Arthur W. Pinero's play "Sweet Lavender" has been chosen. In spite of its title the committee is of the opinion that this play must be regarded as one of the most successful stage plays of modern times.

At Thursday's meeting the play will be briefly outlined and the characters finally cast. It is hoped to hold the first rehearsal within a week. Copies of the play have been ordered and additional copies if available are needed.

The characters are as follows:—Horace Broom (a young American) of the "go get 'em" type Geoffrey Walderburn (a handsome well preserved man of fifty and manner of a prosperous country gentleman), Clement Hall (His adopted son, studying for the bar), a handsome boyish young man of (thirty and twenty), Richard Phenyl (a dissolute looking man of 45 somewhat cadaverous. Eccentric manner but refined and good humoured), Dr. Delaney (a fashionable physician. A genial old Irish gentleman), Mr. Bulger (Wigmaker and hairdresser. A meek bald headed quiet man), Mr. Maw (Solicitor), Minnie Gilliflawn (a handsome lively young woman), Mrs. Gilliflawn (a sedate aristocratic looking woman of 50), Ruth Rolt (a slim delicate looking woman of thirty-five with a sweet face and a sad voice), Lavender (a slight pretty girl, about seventeen. Voice sweet and gentle her movements are graceful refined).

The following people have been requested by the executive to be present:—The Misses Frieman, Bission, Leviskoiff, Ellis, and those cast for "Her Honour" Messrs. C. West, Archdale, Massy Beresford D. Denny, G. Taylor, A. Laverty, W. Troy, L. Gillianelli and B. A. Evans.

Any other ladies or men interested in this production are also invited to attend, the executive announced.

SCIENCE LECTURE

Dr. S. S. Bider will be the speaker to-night at the fourth extension lecture on the story of science to be given in the Macdonald Physics Building at 8.15 o'clock. He will speak on "Gilbert, Oersted, Ampere, Galvani Volta Ohm."

REPORTS CLOSE

Today at 6 o'clock the annual board will receive the last reports of all clubs and societies for inclusion in "Old McGill 1927." All failing to submit the reports as scheduled will not be included in the book, it was announced last night.

CHESS GAME

The "13" Chess team plays to-night at 7.15 St. Catherine street west. It was announced yesterday by the club executive. The "C" team in its match on Monday won by a score of 4-2.

TRADE EXPERT TO SPEAK IN UNION

Luncheon Under Auspices of Commercial Society

ERIC LOUW

Is Official Representative of South African Union—
Here Friday

McGill will have an unusual opportunity to hear a speaker officially representing the South African Union, when Eric Louw will speak at a luncheon to be held in the ball room of the Union on Friday. It was announced yesterday.

The only other address Mr. Louw is making in Montreal is before the Export Club. Through the efforts of Col. Bovey the luncheon has been made possible and Mr. Louw will address the students here just before his departure for Shawinigan Falls.

Brock Jamieson, president of the Union, announced last night that the lunch will be served in the ball room, as the grill room is already reserved for that day. There will be places for only 100 provided. The cost of the lunch will be 60 cents. It has not been announced yet when the tickets may be obtained.

The lunch is officially under the auspices of the Commercial Society, and the address will be of special interest to the Commerce faculty, it is stated. Mr. Louw being particularly interested in trade problems.

Mr. Louw is the first trade commissioner to represent the Union of South Africa in Canada and the United States. He has just been down to New York and is now spending some time in Canada. South Africa has just awakened to the possibilities of such a commission, and has selected an exceptionally attractive speaker to represent her on this side of the water, Col. Bovey announced. Mr. Louw's subject for his address will be announced shortly.

WINS AGAIN

T.H. Harris, news editor of the Daily was yesterday the recipient of tickets for 24 bottles of Coca Cola as winner of the second ad-writing contest. Harris won the first one just a week ago.

ELIMINATIONS FOR DEBATERS FINISH TODAY

Thirteen Heard Yesterday—
Remainder Today

NEW SUBJECT

Examinations Question to be Considered by Entrants
at 5 O'clock

Eliminations began yesterday afternoon for the choice of the intercollegiate debaters and thirteen of the contestants were heard by the judges in Strathcona Hall. Each one of them discussed the problem of the situation of the university in rural district or in the city and were marked carefully by Mr. Justice Surveyor and Dr. Graham who are the adjudicators for the eliminations.

The remaining men who entered their names will be heard this afternoon at 5 o'clock in Strathcona Hall. The subject upon which they will be asked to speak was announced last night by A.O. Lloyd, president of the Literary and Debating Society. It reads as follows: "Resolved that the low standard of the entrance examinations to McGill University in the cause of the large number of failures in the first year."

The same system which was successfully practised yesterday will be put into force today. The first contestant will enter the room. The subject will be introduced by A.O. Lloyd. The speaker will take note of what is said and will speak on the opposite side to that taken by Lloyd. He will be asked to try his best to reply to the arguments raised. While he is speaking the second contestant will enter the room. He will hear the first contestant speak and will in turn base his remarks on the speaker immediately preceding him. In this manner the power of rebuttal of the various speakers will be the more readily determined by the judges.

It is expected that if the complete eliminations will be gone through this evening the seven men who will have best acquitted themselves in the contests will be announced. Each speaker has been marked on a percentage basis and the men scoring the highest number of points will be placed on the teams.

Two men are needed for the debate against Queen's taking place at the end of this month. Two more men are needed to debate Toronto while three men are required to engage in the annual debate with the St. James Literary Society of Montreal.

The judges last night expressed themselves as gratified by the standard of oratory and stated that if the contestants who are to be heard today acquit themselves in an equally fine manner excellent teams will be assured McGill this year.

SOCCER TEAM TO BE BANQUETED IN UNION

All preparations are made to banquet the soccer team this evening at 7.15 in the Union it was announced last night by the manager of the team.

The soccer team again won the intercollegiate championship and also made a successful trip to the States and this evening's function will be a fitting climax to the past season's activities, the manager declared.

Election of officers for next season will take place after the banquet.

Arts Building, In Dotage, Suffers Three Injuries

The Arts Building in its dotage and in the throes of death with its falling ceilings, its shaky floors and its dilapidated walls suffered three violent catastrophes yesterday in preparation for the greater ones to come within a short time. A steam pipe in the cellar burst open, three windows were shattered into small pieces, and one of the columns that support the exterior of the building was moved one inch as a result of the digging, excavating, and blasting which is taking place in the immediate environs of the venerable old building.

The steam pipe which exploded caused considerable damage to the residence of William Gentlemen, which is in the Arts Building. It flooded all the rooms with water damaging the furniture and clothes in them to the extent of $100.00. At the time of the explosion Mrs. Gentlemen was in one of the rooms and with difficulty was able to escape the crushing water. In the act she collapsed on a chair while a hurried call for help by Gentlemen's son brought his father down to stop the flow of the water. Several holes had to be bored to allow the water to escape.

The three windows which were broken were in Room 3, Room 107, and in the Reading Room of the Arts Building, the largest window being that of Room 2.

ILLUSTRATED LECTURE

Dr. Fred Auld who graduated from McGill in 1909 and has since done medical missionary work in China will give an illustrated lecture on his experiences this evening at 8 o'clock in the hall of Erskine Church corner of Sherbrooke street and Ontario Avenue. McGill men and women have been especially invited to attend the lecture which is entitled "Hospital Work in China." It was stated last night.

CORPORATION MEETING

The Corporation of McGill is meeting this afternoon in the New Medical Building.

Gridiron Gus In Soliloquy On Problem Of Billiards

(By Gridiron Gus)

We are told every day among the advertisements of the "Daily" to play billiards. Sometimes we are told in prose and at other times in very vretched verse, but we are told over and over again to play billiards. We have been exhorted to go in for this sport because "The Union Billiard Room is a place that belongs to you" and that "It helps our financial task" (worthy motive) and also we are told there is the added delight of catching Mr. Wilson unawares (this last in verse) Gosh!

But now we think we have found another reason for playing billiards. Everyone knows full well that it is a gentleman's game much above the lowly Boston or Straight pool and that every man of any greatness was a wizard with the cue. The story is told of Napoleon who was one of the most ardent enthusiasts of the game spending all his spare time when he was not trimming the Prussians in playing billiards. He was in the bargain an expert at the game and continually beat one of his generals who was the champion of the army. That was what always made the general Grouchy. (Pretty awful eh?) Alexander, it was said went because he could find no one else to beat.

All great men, then play billiards, which brings us to our story. Yesterday evening one of the greatest producers in the country, in fact in America, was seen spending a few moments in recuperation from his trials at the grand old game. The task of directing is not an easy one and this great director gets his relaxation by the cue. It is an inspiration for all who aspire to greatness. Play your billiards and success will come by itself. I would tell you what his name is but if Dave ever got wind of this I would have to Leg it from college.

Don't scoff at that one. Even the great Shakespeare could not resist a pun and who can say but that he was an enthusiast over billiards himself.

COMPULSORY LECTURES AGAIN

The matter of compulsory lectures at McGill has not been discussed, perhaps, as long as the Arts Building—but it has been brought to our attention frequently during the last few years. It is indeed timely that the subject be again introduced for, now, that the Faculty of Arts is to experience an outward change some change in the inner form might be advisable. It is an alteration in which no delay is necessary. There are no financial problems, such as we had in the case of the Arts Building, involved; no detailed plans are needed. All that is required is a simple piece of legislation, and the handing out to the student of "sugar-coated" lectures in fixed doses and the element of compulsion, so disagreeable in any event, would be terminated. Added independence would be given the student. As an inevitable result we would get the stimulation of keener and more original research at McGill.

Let us see what our own principal has to say on the subject. In Sir Arthur Currie's annual report we find:

"The evils of overlecturing are obvious and positive enough. Three lectures per diem given at irregular hours both in the morning and in the afternoon break up the student's working day overmuch and so tend to cause the formation of divided desultory habits of daily work. When compulsory lectures are so frequent the contents of the lectures themselves accumulate so rapidly that even the most careful, thorough student is compelled to make the lectures the basis of his study and to confine his independent study to such small parts of the subject as will best serve to complete his lecture notes for examination purposes. Finally the habit of dumb listening to oral lectures month after month for four long years always tends, slowly but surely, to undermine the student's natural initiative to undertake free, independent study and research of his own in any subject."

The lecture system as a whole is weak, and the compulsory system only serves to make it weaker. The students—as Sir Arthur points out realizing only too well the inadequacies of the present method—become mere fact-receptacles. They must absorb the lectures and when they have absorbed them no time is left for original study and work on the subject—that original study and work which is more important, more significant than all the lectures combined.

What is more the vast majority of students—the average students—under the present system of lectures, possessing no critical faculty of their own, unable to discern between one viewpoint and another, take every statement handed out to them for granted and after duly digesting and memorizing these statements return them to the professor by way of the examination paper. How bored the professor must be to have his own opinions and ideas thrown back at him in this way! How much better would it be if the student could at least show on his examination some results of his own reading and study—some conclusions which he himself has reached! Instead of encouraging keen, logical criticism and thought the present lecture system serves to blunt the appetite for knowledge, to dull the mental faculties, to bore a student for four long years and then send him out stuffed with numerous facts, totally unable to use his own brains intelligently.

Furthermore, how jarring it is for a student who has done excellent work by himself to receive a note the day before an examination informing him that he has missed more than one eighth of his lectures and therefore will not be permitted to write. Quite often, were that student given an opportunity to write he would submit a far better paper than the many pluggers who, having recorded everything faithfully, like gramophones, begin to repeat all when the order is given to begin writing.

Those who have experienced the delights of independent research, of contrast and study, of using lectures merely as guides to intellectual food, rather than as the food itself, of digging out and making discoveries, all shout loudly for a change. Perhaps, in this age of rapidly moving events at McGill the time is not too remote when compulsory lectures will no longer exist here? The legislation could be slow and steady. We could start by emancipating the seniors. After a time we could project the legislation and give the juniors liberty. At a still later date the sophomores might be included. Only for the freshmen would the present rule remain. As newcomers to college they must of necessity become acquainted with the general trend of college life. One year of tedious note-taking and boredom should not be too harmful for first year students.

DEBATING ELIMINATIONS

The elimination for debaters took place yesterday afternoon and the fact that more than twenty participated and that another contest is necessary indicates once again that there is keen interest in debating at McGill. For the past few years, however, McGill, with excellent teams in the field—has lost nearly every intercollegiate debate. We can only hope, at this stage, that this year will see the men who will be selected maintaining as high a standard of debate as has been set in previous years, and bringing many victories to their Alma Mater.

COLLEGIANA

Culled by L. S.

PROEM

The vitality of a university is best portrayed in its newspapers, be it issued daily or weekly, in which the decrees of the faculty, the activities of the student body, their discussions, and their escapades are reported. Even a cursory perusal of the newspaper turned out by the average Institute of Higher Learning in the United States or Canada to-day will reveal a state of affairs where it is a heinous offence for a student to smoke on the college campus or for a college editor to criticize a chapel speech. Poltroonish professors appoint policemen and guards to prevent students from dancing the Charleston and morose students stage beauty contests, and marble competitions.

The following justification for this column is quoted from The New Student:

"The college world has its Babbitts. The loyal fraternity brother, passing out into larger spheres of service, finds himself quite at home in the overflowing brotherliness of the Rotary. The cant of Service has invaded the college world long ago. In one college there is an 'honourary society' whose members embody the spirit of 'honour through service'. The fruit of this 'spirit' consists of being 'especially conspicuous' on an many college committees as possible.

"Does the outside world have its revues, its big shows, then the student body must also have its Follies, its tinsel imitation musical comedies.

"These manifestations and a dozen others we might name, are but collegiate shadows of our national Babbitism, and scoldings will not avail. The college booster, the campus Elk and Kiwanian should not be paid the compliment of serious treatment. He should be subjected to uproarious laughter, to burlesque, to the rapier thrust of satire. Again we must go to the outside for analogy; we need a collegiate group of A. E. Woodward, E. L. Metchens and Sinclair Lewises."

Startling efficiency of the Police at the University of Indiana.

The dance at the Student Building was stopped abruptly by Walter Peterson, campus policeman, at the end of the second dance, last night, when several couples were charged with having been performing the Charleston contrary to the ruling of University trustees.

"I hate to discommode those who were doing right," Mr. Peterson said, "but there were ten or 15 couples doing the Charleston. I know the Charleston when I see it—I expect I have seen it danced as much as any one there—and my orders from the trustees were to stop any dance at which the Charleston was done."

Notable competition in the School of Music of the University of Montana.

AWS song contest was won by V. Lewis, a freshman majoring in the School of Music. Miss Lewis will be presented with a banner, which was offered as an award for the winning song, at a Traditions committee meeting which will be held this evening. The song is as follows:

There's a school in the heart of the golden west,
'Neath the blue Montana skies,
And of all good schools it's by far the best,
It is praised by men most wise.
It's the place to go if you want to grow
In spirit, soul and mind.
And from coast to coast, none can over boast
Of another of its kind.
Montana. Here's to you
We'll be ever loyal, true;
With the stars above shining o'er our heads,
Montana. Here's to you.

The tendency for slang catch phrases to be used by the old as well as the young is illustrated by the following incident. One of our Freshmen, following the Law dance, sent home a telegram which read: "Please send some money. Am broke." The next day he received this answer: "So's your old man."

SENIORS WORK FOR GAME WITH QUEEN'S

Ready to Tackle Men at Kingston Tomorrow
LAST PRACTISE
Will Finish up To-day and Leave Tonight—Keen Interest Manifest

The seniors after resting over the week-end have been out for light work-outs this week. Coach Shaughnessy has been pointing out their weak points and a decided improvement has already taken place in the matter of combination and team play. The McGill squad will be out for their last practice this afternoon in preparation for their game against Queen's to-morrow night. They came out of Saturday night's game a bit battered but without serious injuries. It is expected that they will be in first class condition for their struggle with the Presbyterians to-morrow night.

In their last three starts this season Queen's were defeated by very close scores. With their newly augmented and more improved team, they are determined to give the Red and White warriors stiff opposition. The students will remember the closeness of the play in the last match between these two teams.

A win for the Red and White will secure for them a strong hold for second place. St. Germaine the McGill left winger, along with Mickles and Art Abbott are going at great speed and have their mark set on obtaining a number of goals. The McGill defense of McGerricle and McMahon are teaming well together and are assured of being able to ward off the attacks by the Queen forwards. "Herb" McGerricle is the McGill intercollegiate football team.

COACHES NAME TEAMS FOR THE KINGSTON MEET

(By Gridiron Gus)

With the exception of one class in the boxing, the team which will represent McGill in the Assault-at-Murphy, the net-minder is improving all the time and those who saw him Saturday night know well his ability to turn aside those shots which appear to be sure goals.

Another feature of the McGill team is their efficient substitutes. In Paul Smith, Rolye Bell and Lynch. These men can always be called upon to do their bit and can be counted on in giving the Queen's six a stiff battle.

On the other hand the Queen's team under the able coaching of "Bill" Hughes the former McGill star and a pupil of Coach Shaughnessy, has been slightly renovated. Voss, who played on the defence with Pelton has been moved down to the juniors so as to bolster up their squad who are in line for the championship and has in his place put in Britton the half-back of the championship intercollegiate football team.

Arms in Kingston next week-end has been chosen by the coaches. The one representative that has not as yet been decided on is in the 125 boxing and the final in this class will be staged in Nelson Hall on Thursday afternoon. The two contestants are Musselman who has shown such good form in recent bouts and Adams, a veteran of a number of years' experience.

The B. W. and F. team looks this year to be one of the strongest that has ever represented McGill for some time. The strength of the team seems to lie in the boxers, all of whom will be strong contenders for the intercollegiate honours. The trip to Boston clearly demonstrated their strength and they proved their mettle against a team that ranks high in the United States. The M. I. T. is rated particularly strong as boxing and wrestling are two of the few sports in which the Engineers participate and their attention is concentrated on turning out a strong team.

McGill won all but one of the bouts with the M. I. T. fighters and the McGill man to lose was pitted against an opponent who had ten knock-outs to his record. The McGill boxing team is composed this year of men who have proved their ability in intercollegiate rings before and those among the newcomers have more than demonstrated their worth. Schleiffer, Bert Taylor and Hughes looks like almost sure winners. Keller, the find of the season is another fighter who is a good bet to win. The heavier Taylor has also showed great form in his first year wearing the Red and White, but he will have his hands full for to all reports he is up against the famous Don Carrick of Varsity. Curtis, who has fought well in the eliminations to beat a number of good men is up against Robertson of Varsity, an experienced man who has twice won from Snow in the Assault.

Wrestlers Good
The wrestlers though not presenting the formidable array of the boxing team are a well-conditioned bunch of mat artists. The road work indulged in during the past few days has worked wonders in putting the men in the best of condition and what they may lack in experience will be made up in their condition. Varsity on the other hand do not seem to be boastful about their wrestling team and reports from the Queen City say that only two of the veterans are again on the mat for the White and Blue. Webster and Kohl, both intercollegiate champions are again on the mat. Webster has moved up to the 125 pound class and is likely to give to McGill representatives a very tough battle. Kohl lost out in the intercollegiate assault in Hart House the other night but may be on the team. McGill has a fighting chance in the wrestling as neither team seems to be made up of many experienced men.

The other department of the B. W. and F. team, the fencers, look like sure fire winners and will be able to add another point to the total if they pull through with a win. Crestohl is a fencer of considerable experience and besides being past intercollegiate champion also holds the Provincial Championship with the foils. He has fenced on intercollegiate teams for a number of years. Knee, the other representative was also a member of last year's team and came second in the fencing tournament. Knee has also been at the game a long time and wields a mighty sword. Barr who last year came out on top in the intercollegiate tournament seems to have graduated as there is no mention of him in any of the reports. If he has left college the chances for the fencing title are good for the McGill pair.

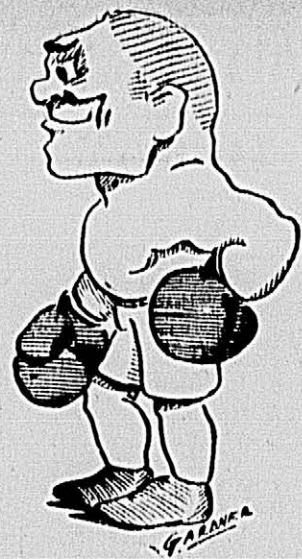

Teams Name

The team which goes to Kingston to represent McGill in the Assault is as follows:

Fencing: Crestohl and Knee.
Wrestling: 112: Silver, 117: Bryant, 125: Gullaneill, 134: Greenberg, 145: Touzel, 155: Bradley, 171: Vinberg, Heavy: Martineau.

Boxing: 112: Schleiffer, 118: Lister, 126: Musselman or Adams, 135: Curtis, 147: Bert Taylor, 160: Hughes, 175: Keller, Heavy Taylor.

These men are requested to keep track of all notices in the "Daily." There will be a picture taken of the team named above and the following at 12.15 at Notman's Studio: Kehlin, Demire, Brain, Doushness and Snow. So says Manager Phelps and who am I to say different. What's more everyone should see that they get there.

R.V.C. HOCKEYISTS WON AT MACDONALD

Piled up 1-0 Score at St. Anne de Bellevue

SLOW AT FIRST

But Game Speeded up as it Nearing the End—Miss Burland Scored

Last evening the R.V.C. hockey team defeated the Macdonald players, 1-0, in a closely contested match at St. Anne de Bellevue. This was the first game of the City League schedule in which the R.V.C. took part.

The first period of the match was comparatively slow, neither team being warmed up to the game. The play for the most part centered around the Macdonald goal; in fact, throughout the entire contest the defender of the R.V.C. net was only called upon once to make a save. The home team made frequent rushes up the ice but were not afforded an opportunity to shoot on account of the ability of the McGill defence. Miss Turley succeeded in breaking through with several long, well-directed shots but was unable to score due to the alertness of the Macdonald goal. Hence the period terminated with no score.

The second period proved very similar to the first. Miss Martin effected a number of splendid rushes up the ice but, owing to the able checking of her opponents, could not alter the score.

The final period offered faster hockey to the enthusiastic spectators. Miss Burland and Miss Adams distinguished themselves on the forward line, the former being the means of gaining the only point of the match.

Evenly Matched.
The teams were on the whole evenly matched. Both managers used their spares freely. Miss Calder and Miss McMaster starred for their team.

After the match, the visitors, who were accompanied by Miss R. Harvey, were hospitably entertained by their hostesses.

The line-up was as follows:—

MACDONALD R.V.C.
Goal R. Heartz
Centre M. McMaster
Forwards E. White, I. Scriver, E. Cromwell, A. Adams
Defense E. Calder, M. Martin, J. McLean, R. Turley
Subs. G. Sharpe, H. Gilman.

William Macdonald provided for the opening of the Chemistry and Mining Building. During the same period he presented the University with a tract of 35 acres on Westmount Mountain and with the necessary funds to construct the McGill Union. He established and endowed Macdonald College at St. Anne de Bellevue and he acquired for McGill the property at the corner of University and McTavish Streets, as well as Macdonald Park the site of the Stadium. He did, indeed, Col. Bovey said, far more for he endowed the buildings which had been paid for by funds he supplied, he endowed the Law Faculty and no less than ten chairs, the aggregate value of his gifts, at the lowest estimate, are figured at not less than ten millions of dollars.

Disappointment and disillusion are the result, generally, of lack of guidance, or of misguidance. The possibilities, abilities, and aptitudes of youths should be released and given direction.

In closing Dr. Hoben explained that the most terrible thing which could happen would be to permit the youth to isolate himself and deteriorate, and the best thing to do is to erect schools, playgrounds, and parks, and to give the youth positive direction to as great a degree as is possible.

The third lecture of the series next Tuesday will be delivered by Dr. Augustus F. Bronger of the Judge Baker Foundation who will speak on "Treating the Delinquent as a Person."

COMMERCE WON IN SEMI-FINALS

Played Two Periods Over-time in Hot Game

CLOSE SCORE

Combination Play Won Out For Commercial in Hectic Battle

In the semi-final of the Inter-class Hockey League, Commerce 2 defeated Arts 1 by the close score of 4-3 after two periods of overtime play last night. The deciding goal which netted the Commercial the game came as a result of a neat piece of combination play by Ney Gordon, Joe Cameron and Jack Little, the goal honour being credited to Little. Commerce will now play Med 4 in the finals to-day.

The first period started with Commerce rushing continually down the ice and testing Shulman the Arts' goal with many difficult shots which he turned aside in a very able manner. About two minutes before the close, Urquhart the left winger for the freshmen took a shot at Carley from outside the defence which netted his team the first goal of the game.

After 50 seconds of play in the second period, Kruger for Arts obtained the second goal of the game after a neat individual rush. The Commercial not to be outdone by the lower classmen came back with renewed vigour and scored twice to make matters a tie. The feature of this period was the beautiful combination work of Joe Cameron and Jack Little for Commerce.

The first overtime period opened with both teams on the offensive and very eager to score. Cameron and Little produced some very good combination plays which resulted in the latter scoring a goal. The Arts team seeing that their chances were low sent down five men down the ice which netted them a goal to tie the score, making it now three all and necessitating them to play another overtime period.

The next overtime period was the deciding one and Commerce emerged the victors after four minutes of fast play, Jack Little scoring on a pass in front of the net from Joe Cameron.

The line-ups were as follows:—

COMMERCE Arts
Goal Carley
Defence Cameron, Jones, Le Baron, MacKenzie
Centre Lewis, Hanrahan
Wings Little, Kruger
Gordon, McCrimmon
Spares Le May, Urquhart, Priest, Hinds, Kelland, Crandall

Adela Verne At Imperial Able Pianist

It is indeed a treat which Adela Verne, pianiste holds in store for this week's patrons of the Imperial Theatre. It might be said that the whole of the bill is of the same degree of excellence.

Adela Verne charms the audience with the playing of numbers from Chopin and Alkan of numbers from masterly performance of Liszt's Second Hungarian Rhapsody in answer to the hearty applause with which she was met at the end of her act she played as an encore the famous Paderewski Minuet. The Montreal theatre-going public is not treated very often with a performance of this type and excellence.

"A Woman's Way" a short skit by Valerie Bergere and company very cleverly portrays the lesson given to a doctor by his neglected wife aided by a professional peace-maker. The Rodgers Sisters in their act tell of their leaving college and of their making the attempt to inflect their music upon the public. They succeeded admirably and were well received.

Rodero and Maley sing and delight the crowd with their funny jokes and gestures. In a very original manner Harry Ames, a rich singer himself, introduces some clever dancing amid beautiful settings by the rest of his company. Pink's Mules which also includes several dogs, completed the vaudeville performance.

"The Keeper of the Rees" adapted from the book by Gene Stratton-Porter is the film of the evening. It is well played with Robert Frazer as the ex-soldier and Joseph Swickard in the loveable role of the Big Master.

NEED OF DIRECTION FOR CHILD'S IDEAS

Expressions Should go in Right Channels

"CUBBING"

Old Scouts Club Hears Discussion on Training of Youngsters

"A child's experiments are usually called mischief in Cubbing we try to direct these expressions into their right channels" said H. M. Jockel at the Old Scouts Club last night when he began the evening's discussion on "Cubbing".

Preparatory to the discussion the president announced that the next meeting would be the last, this session and the members left the choice of speaker and subject in the hands of the executive.

"Cubbing" is not Junior Scouting; Mr. Jockel explained, although many Cub Masters still dish up "Milk and Water" scouting. It was unfortunate that Scouting had been organized before Cubbing because of necessity the latter came first in the boy's life. The training should not be taken up as an outlet of good nature for the leader but as a method of making them worthy citizens of Canada. It is true that it starts a boy on the high road to Scouting. It creates in the Cub an open mind from which develops Usefulness, Unselfishness, Honesty, Cleanliness and will help a boy ultimately to find his vocation in life. It trains both body and mind. Character is developed together with self control and mental alertness. "Cubbing" is essentially not a cure for bad boys, but it gives them a better chance.

The system is based on Kipling's Jungle Book, with Mowgli as the Cub and Baroo as the instructor. These primaries give the necessary discipline and all look up to Akeia the Old Wolf. The boy's mind is divided into branches of play attitude and work attitude, which are carried on by the inevitable games, and noise. Play has been a necessity through the ages. The Egyptians thought of it as part of their Heaven. The Greeks divided it into groups of Nursery, School and Social.

Training Stages

The Cub makes his promise and becomes a tender pad. There is no drill except an essential minimum for an orderly march to Church. When a Cub gains his first star he opens his first eye, and when obtaining his second, he can see fully, then his mind is directed to 12 badges which he can win. They are divided into four groups of intelligence, handicraft, service and athletics. These tests are done in the home so that the parents can see the efficiency of the training.

"Cubbing" is not an educational scheme" the speaker concluded, "nor is it even intended to keep to school work. It is primarily a character builder or as I prefer to call it, 'A glorified home training'."

A most vigorous discussion ensued on the point that "Cubbing" is not a cure for bad boys, for experience would show that the outstanding terror or devil became merged into the pack, so that even Cub Mistresses were able to work with them.

ARTS '28 WON AT INDOOR BASEBALL

Defeated Arts '29 by a 7-6
Score Last Night in
M.H.S. Gym.

Arts '28 went into the finals in indoor baseball against Med '27, by defeating Arts '29 in Montreal High Gym last night, 7-6. The result was in doubt until the last man was out, and great excitement was evidenced by players and spectators alike.

Arts '28 started with a rush in the first inning and combined several hits and an error for four runs. Arts '29 came back strong, scoring five runs in their half on a hunting attack, Lang, Held, Leithman, DuBoye, Fry and Szendlet making successive hits. Each team scored one in the second, and the first year team tied it up 6-6 in the third. From then on Blumenthal, who replaced Leithman for '28, pitched a beautiful game, and shut out his opponents for the remaining innings. The sophomore scored the deciding run in the sixth inning and put out the Freshmen in the seventh and last. Lang's sensational circus catch in the sixth was the high light of the game. Blumenthal and Szendlet were also conspicuous for the winners. Bloomfield '29's star pitcher, showed plenty of stuff on the ball, and Herman did some good hitting.

The Editor,
McGill Daily

Dear Sir:—It appears that someone has been criticizing the Students' Council for objecting to unauthorized parades. But a brief consideration will show that the Council has only been acting on a firmly established historical precedent. In 1848 a band of discontented labourers marched on London, but the Government forbade the parade, and sent a force of 17,000 special constables, backed by troops under the command of no less a personage than the Duke of Wellington, to disperse the crowd. It is significant that the Duke at this time was in his dotage.

Cannot we imagine an exact parallel? A parade of students appears, and forthwith the members of the Scarlet Key Society—there may not be 17,000, but there seems to be a large number—sally out, backed by the Students' Council under no less a personage than the President himself, to quell the disturbance.

In the parade of 1848 the offenders were "summarily dealt with". The punishment in those days was execution, but for an offence against the

EXPERT EXPLAINS BLOOD COAGULATION

Non-surgical Treatment Discussed by Dr. Mills

EXPERIMENTS

Spoke to the Biological Society Yesterday After-noon

The non-surgical treatment for hemorrhage in deep-seated parts of the body and certain bleeding diseases was outlined and explained by its discoverer, Dr. C. A. Mills, the director of experimental medicine at Cincinnati, in a lecture given at the Biological Building yesterday afternoon before the Biological Society.

Dr. Mills first traced the history of the theories of blood coagulation, dwelling especially on Howell's Theory. He then went on to discuss the evolution of man as going hand in hand with the increase in speed and pressure of the circulatory system. Hence the danger of the loss of a large amount of the "vital fluid".

Things nature has developed a protective system—the coagulation, or clotting of blood when bleeding takes place as the result of a wound or hemorrhage.

To produce the coagulation of blood (fibrin, protein, and fibrinogen are necessary. Thus by administering tissue protein fibrinogen in water to animals he shortened the coagulation time of the blood—outside the body. But it had no effect on the blood in the uninjured vessels.

Dr. Mills then went on to explain how he finds this discovery to be of practical use to humans. He and his Japanese assistant, who helped in the research work, each took a comparatively large dose of the fluid—tissue protein fibrinogen in water—orally, that is, through the mouth. The result was practically the same in the case of each; within 15 minutes the coagulation of their blood had been lowered from two or three minutes to 20 or 30 seconds, and remained for a few hours. There were no subjective sensations experienced due to the liquid.

The speaker applied this non-surgical treatment to hemophiliacs—those who have an abnormal tendency to hemorrhage—for it brought the coagulation time within normal limits. This treatment can be used in emergency cases especially with great success. In fact, remarked the speaker, no hemophilic has failed to respond to the protein reaction.

Dr. Mills will demonstrate to-day at the Montreal General Hospital.

Council I propose that we should follow the example of the "Mikado" and adopt as a penalty "something lingering, with boiling oil in it."

There has also been an outcry concerning the adoption of a distinctive dress for the Scarlet Key Society. But here again the idea is based on precedent for in the Middle Ages it was the custom for the court jester to wear a distinctive dress.

Your correspondent of yesterday, whose name I believe starts with Gordon, sounds like a parlour Fascist. But "people who live in glass houses shouldn't throw stones", and gentlemen who have chosen scarlet as the emblem of their calling should be chary of calling other people Bolsheviks. Incidentally, the Faculty will be pleased to note the order in which your correspondent ranges the attributes of McGill: "numerical, athletic and collegiate"—whatever that may mean.

In order to avoid unnecessary trouble, for this same gentleman, who appears to make a hobby of discovering people's Christian names, I will add that my first names are Marmaduke Sebastian Ptolemy.

Yours truly

M. S. P. E.

Sophomore's Smoke Was Very Costly

They had a good laugh in the Old Arts Building yesterday when a professor placed his hand on the shoulders of a Sophomore and asked him to step into the Dean's office. It appears that aforementioned Soph went to the trouble of lighting a cigarette on leaving the class-room, and that the professor took exception to this procedure.

Dean MacKay offered the offender the option of a five dollar fine or indefinite suspension from lectures.

It is rumoured that the fine is paid.
